Morgan Stanley Ex-Official in China Sentenced to 9 Months in Prison

By CHAD BRAY

The former head of Morgan Stanley’s real-estate investing operations in China was sentenced to nine months in prison Thursday after he admitted earlier this year to conspiring to violate a U.S. anti-corruption law.

Federal prosecutors alleged that Garth Peterson, a former managing director in the Morgan Stanley Real Estate Group’s Shanghai office, conspired with two others, including a Chinese government official, to misappropriate a multimillion-dollar interest in a Shanghai apartment building being sold by a Morgan Stanley fund.

Morgan Stanley believed it was selling a 12% stake in the building to a unit of a state-owned real-estate company but instead sold shares to an entity controlled by Mr. Peterson, the Chinese official and a Canadian lawyer, prosecutors said.

The Chinese official headed Yongye, the state-owned company, and was a close friend and mentor, Mr. Peterson’s lawyers said in court papers.

A lawyer for Mr. Peterson didn’t return a phone call seeking comment late Thursday.

In April, Mr. Peterson pleaded guilty to a single count of conspiracy to evade the internal controls of a public company in violation of the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act, which bars U.S. companies and their employees from bribing or improperly co-opting foreign officials.

Enforcement of the act has been a top priority of the Justice Department in recent years, but the department had previously come under criticism for a lack of individual prosecutions. However, the department in the past year has brought criminal charges against a number of former executives, including a group of former officials at German conglomerate Siemens AG and Mr. Peterson.

In April, Mr. Peterson, who worked for Morgan Stanley from 2002 to 2008, also agreed to disgorge $254,589 and to give up his interest in the apartment building to settle a separate but related civil lawsuit brought by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

On Thursday, U.S. District Judge Jack Weinstein sentenced Mr. Peterson to nine months in prison, to be followed by three years supervised release. No fine was imposed.
Prosecutors had been seeking a sentence of at least four years and three months in prison. However, his lawyers have asked for no or minimal jail.

Morgan Stanley, which wasn’t charged in the case, said it cooperated fully with the probe. "Mr. Peterson’s intentional circumvention of Morgan Stanley’s internal controls was a deliberate and egregious violation of our values and policies," the investment bank said.

A version of this article appeared August 17, 2012, on page Cl in the U.S. edition of The Wall Street Journal, with the headline, Morgan Stanley Ex-Official Sentenced.

The Real Estate School
Quickly Find Real Estate Training Providers to Advance Your Career.
www.business.com

President’s Roll Program
Refinance rates hit 2.90% APR! Calculate new payment now.
www.refinance.LowerMyBills.com

Free Reference Toolbar
Look Up Sentence Now Define Words Quickly-Free Download!
AddOnReviews.com/Reference

Selling your home?
Sell it for free on Realtypin.com! Millions of interested buyers.
RealtyPin.com

You Might Like
Rahul Gandhi Takes A Lead Role, Finally
The Trashiest Team in Football
The SEC Officially Rules the Universe
Best of the Web Today: Occidental Pregnancy
Duchess of Cambridge Is Expecting a Baby

Content from our Sponsors

DEATH AT SEAWORLD | EYEWITNESS INTERVIEW with Lynne Schabert (Video)
6 Tricks to Avoiding Speeding Tickets (Reader's Digest)
Can a Police Officer Enter a Home Without a Warrant? (AP)

More in Real Estate Main

Neighborhood Watch
Appraisers in Splitsville
Santa Monica House Seeks $22 Million
A Miami Kingpin’s Modern Turn
Mapping the Material World

Most Popular

1. U.S. Casts Doubt on Iran Drone Claims
2. GOP Makes Counteroffer in Cliff Talks
3. The Ups and Downs of Making Elevators Go
4. Duchess of Cambridge Is Expecting a Baby
5. Opinion: Best of the Web Today: Occidental Pregnancy

Most Read Articles Today

Latest Tweets

1. AlanZibel: RT @gmac: @AlanZibel what’s shocking is how much attention is being paid to one person’s committee assignment.
2. AlanZibel: RT @Noahbieman: E Warren naming three campaign staffers to top Senate jobs in her office, including Mindy Myers as chief of staff http: ...